Have Been Purchasing Liberally and Will Have Fine Horses, Officials Say.

TABULATING

It will be several days yet before the hundreds of horses entered to compete for the National Horse Show prizes will be property tabulated. The entry forms are stacked in the association's offices, and Secretary James T. Hydes's assistants are busily entering them according to their classes. There are many new exhibitors from the East, West and Canada, and these newcomers to the show ring have been purchasing liberally and have picked up many fine horses that will make their first appearance in competitions. Others have been secured from some big sta-bles that have come under the ham-mer, notably that of the late Alfred

G. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Vanderbilt had been gathering horses at his Oakwood Farm with the intention of competing at this year's show. For some seasons he had entered only a very few horses, thinking that as he was president of the association he should not strive for the ribbons, but last full he determined to get together another fine stable and these horses have nearly all been sold.
